Province tackles acts of stripping

Adult entertainment.

Cities preparing for Sask's amended liquor law, which will allow much more clothes to hit many more floors

It's a new era of loosening restrictions on adult entertainment, but it's still a long way from letting things really hang out.

In Saskatchewan's two major cities and municipalities across the province, officials are wrestling — or soon will be — with ways to handle exotic adult entertainment when such "striptease" performances become legal at liquor-licensed businesses this winter.

"It's been one of the more controversial changes that we've made," Donna Harpauer, minister responsible for the Saskatchewan Liquor and Gaming Authority, said of the province's decision to allow strip acts — or something close to them — as of January.

"It's been literally decades since there have been wide, sweeping changes to liquor laws in Saskatchewan. And I think we're ready for it."

To get ready for the province's new allowance of dancers removing clothing — still without full nudity — in front of alcohol-consuming bar patrons, the two biggest cities are bracing for an impact.

In Saskatoon, city community services manager Randy Grauer notes that officials have sought to "perhaps engage the community a little bit" about the extent to which zoning should keep strip bars to certain locations.

"We thought there might be a cost implication on our police service, on overall enforcement around more flexible liquor consumption," Grauer said. "And should there be a separation distance between them?"

In Regina, city hall will likely keep its measuring stick in hand for exotic entertainment locations. Acting planning manager Ben Mario said current zoning standards are almost certain to remain in place.

"They're basically restricted to industrial zones, but they have a number of separation distance criteria," Mario explained. "They can't be 182.88 metres from a residential land use zone."

Harpauer points out that if a municipality feels strongly enough, it "could completely restrict it" by using zoning to make the entire city off-limits to exotic bar entertainment.

That might, however, be extreme. "We'll still be the most restrictive province," Harpauer noted of the new dress allowance for entertainers. ROSS ROMANIUK/METRO

Bullet shot through home, not believed to be random act

Saskatoon police are investigating a Thursday-evening shooting at a home in the 2200 Block of 17th Street West.

At approximately 5 p.m. police received a call after a woman, and one other person in the house, heard what they believed to be a gun shot. Police have determined a bullet did in fact travel through the back wall and into the home, leaving bullet fragments in an interior wall and furniture.

The motive for the shooting is not known, but it's not believed to be a random act.

Nobody was injured.

Potash, taxes, land fall

Oil helps keep Saskatchewan budget in black

Falling revenue from potash, taxes and Crown land sales is hitting Saskatchewan's bottom line, but more oil money is keeping the books in the black so far.

The Saskatchewan government says in its first-quarter budget update that stronger oil prices are expected to increase revenue by $92 million.

But revenue from Crown land sales is forecast to drop $45.6 million, potash revenue is expected to be down $21.3 million and tax revenue looks to fall by $15 million from March budget projections.

The province still says there will be a surplus of $33 million — but that's about half of what was estimated in the budget.

The budget update comes after TD Economics and RBC said Saskatchewan's economic growth is likely to take a hit from the turmoil in the potash industry.

Rough road ahead: 2.92% property-tax hike proposed

'Three-year focus.' City looks at how to pay for roadway infrastructure, rated at an E level, well below the standard of B

Higher property taxes could be on the way as the City of Saskatoon looks at ways for paying to improve roads.

According to Saskatoon's Roadway and Financial Management Strategy, roadway infrastructure has continued to deteriorate based on low funding levels and now, service levels are below levels approved by council in 2012.

When compared to levels approved in 2012, paved roadways, sidewalks, paved back lanes and boundary roads are rated at an E, well below the required standard of B.

Now city administration is recommending a 2.92 per cent three-year property tax increase, or a phased-in $170 base tax to address an annual funding shortfall of $19.81 million.

"We're suggesting a three-year focus would be a good approach," said city manager, Murray Totland. "Previous reports talked about a 10-year strategy, but based on the feedback we're getting and what council has heard, 10 years to get our roads up to a level of service B is just too long."

If the property tax increase is approved by council during budget deliberations in December, the city could see annual investment in roadway infrastructure almost triple to $31.04 million by 2016.

Saskatoon Mayor Don Atchison said he supported the city administration's plan to increase property taxes dedicated to roadway infrastructure, but said in the end, it's council's decision.

"We need this investment on the part of our citizens to be open, transparent and entirely dedicated to our streets and roads," said Atchison.

The city's executive committee will receive the report from city administration on Monday, and if council chooses to work with the plan, the final decision will be made by council during budget deliberations in December. MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

Impaired driving. Case could lead to more breathalyzer tests in Sask.

Would Saskatchewan drivers who like to have a drink with dinner be better off keeping that information to themselves?

A provincial court ruling came down last week wherein a woman was pulled over for a traffic violation on Highway 16 between North Battleford and Saskatoon.

After being subjected to a roadside screening device and another breathalyzer test at the RCMP Warman Detachment, she was charged and eventually convicted for operating a vehicle with a blood alcohol level over the legal limit.

However, if she hadn't admitted to enjoying a glass of wine earlier in the evening, there would have likely been nothing else in her behaviour to indicate she was under the influence.

"In looking at all the circumstances in this case, it is clear that there was a lack of what are often called the 'usual signs' of impairment, and there is certainly nothing to be gleaned from (the woman's) driving that would raise a suspicion that she had alcohol in her body," said Justice B.G. Morgan in his judgment.

Brian Pfefferle, the lawyer for the defendant, said this confirms that police do not have to believe the amount of alcohol consumed is over the legal limit before applying a test.

He added that while lying to an officer is a criminal offence, no one is obligated to disclose what he or she had to drink before getting behind the wheel.

"When they're investigating if you've had anything to drink tonight, under the Traffic Safety Act, the response could simply be, 'I'm sorry, I'm not answering any questions,'" he said.

"In hindsight everybody knows now that she was over the legal limit, but the reality is that citizens in Canada have the right to go about their business without being checked constantly for their blood alcohol level, and that's what the case is really about."

Saskatoon looking to buy building in city's downtown

Best option. City administration say purchase most fiscally responsible route; cost could be covered by sale of former SPS headquarters

MORGAN

The City of Saskatoon could soon be the new owner of a building in downtown Saskatoon.

On Aug. 12, the executive committee will be discussing a report from city administration to purchase the building located at 202 4th Ave. N. and vacant lots at 221 5th Ave. N., at a cost of roughly $13.4 million.

A report that will be submitted to the city's executive committee from city administration explained the four-storey, 93,000-square-foot building, currently owned by Vecima Networks, will help Saskatoon address its short-term and long-term accommodation needs.

"We've been investigating accommodations options for some time now and the Vecima building will meet both our short- and long-term needs for the next 20 years," said city manager Murray Totland.

"Our investigations also found the cost to purchase the property is the most economically responsible one when compared to other options like building construction or additions to city hall, both of which would start at just under $20 million," he said.

The report from city administration explained that, pending council approval, the City of Saskatoon would cover the cost of the potential sale through its cash holdings, which will eventually be replenished using money from the sale of the current Saskatoon Police Service building and adjacent parking lot.

The report will go before executive committee on Monday.

Is it meat?
"It is real meat — it's flesh. It's muscle cells, when you're eating it you're eating animal flesh."

Would you eat it?

"I don't need to try it; it doesn't interest me personally. If someone made a bet, (something like) Canada would go vegetarian today to eat it, I'd do it. If it helped to reduce suffering, I'd do it on a bet."

The world is our oyster, er, better yet, meat market

A T. rex steak? A woolly mammoth taco? How about your grouchy old boss served up (quite literally) on a silver platter?

In theory, we could someday be eating it all without hurting anyone or anything — taken straight from stem cells lovingly nurtured in a petri dish and dished up on your dinner table.

Maastricht University in the Netherlands is at the root of what could become a modern food marvel. A team there has unveiled a hamburger (valued at $340,000) that was grown in a lab instead of cut from a cow.

And, experts say, that's only the start of where this could all wind up.

Simply put, if this whole thing shakes out, stem cells from pretty much anything we can get our hands on could be cultivated, grilled and enjoyed — depending on how strong your stomach is, of course.

Two teens face child-porn charges in Parsons case

Cyberbullying. Father of 17-year-old who took her own life calls arrests 'bittersweet'

HALEY RYAN

Two young men are facing child pornography charges in the case of Rehtaeh Parsons, nearly two years after her parents allege the teen was gang-raped and a photo of the incident was shared via social media.

On Thursday evening, Halifax police held a news conference to announce the charges.

"A young girl ... experienced the harsh nature of a world of people wanting to do harm and using social media to do it," said Halifax Regional Police Chief Jean-Michel Blais.

"We hope that today's arrests help the community to heal," added Halifax RCMP Chief Supt. Roland Wells.

The young men, both 18, were arrested around 8 a.m. Thursday. One faces two counts of distributing child pornography, and the other charges of making and distributing child pornography.

Blais said no sexual assault charges will be laid because the Crown advised there was "insufficient evidence" to bring any to Glen Canning, Rehtaeh's father, said it was a "bittersweet" moment when he learned of the arrests.

"On one hand I would want to be very happy and very grateful ... on the other hand, it's a bit of a bitter-sweet moment because Rehtaeh's dead now, and it doesn't really make much of a difference to her," he said.

Rehtaeh, 17, took her own life in April after nearly two years of bullying following an alleged rape at a party when she was 15.

Shortly after, a photo of the alleged incident was sent around her school.

Alberta. Terrifying father-son glacier trip ends with a hug

Raymond Cossette had taken three steps across a snow bridge when it "disappeared."

The 32-year-old Alberta man was six kilometres up a glacier on Mount Robson, northwest of Jasper, Alta., with his father Robert, who had flown in from Gatineau, Que., for an annual father-son climbing trip.

But now Ray was free-falling down a crevasse, dropping at least 18 metres before the rope tethered to Rob topside began to tighten. When he hit a pack of deep snow roughly 25 metres below, Ray sank up to his neck.

Up above, the force of Ray's fall had swept Rob right off his feet. He'd already crossed the snow bridge with no problems, but now was being dragged back toward the hole.

Rob had carefully gone over safety precautions with his son the night before. He managed to anchor himself and went to work securing knots, but he couldn't hear Raymond initially and feared the worst.

"Nobody wants to lose their son ... nobody has a death wish," he said.

But Ray had managed to pull his shovel out and went to work digging himself out.

Once free, he turned to the ice-climbing equipment in his pack but the frozen walls were too thick to dig into. Instead, Ray used a technique he'd practised by tying a rope to beams in his garage and shimmying up it.

When Ray reached the top, two hours after his fall, his father wrapped him up in a big hug.

Television. However, telecom regulator says it plans to review rules for news channels

Sun News Network says it will stay on the air while the CRTC reviews the way news channels are regulated in Canada.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission on Thursday rejected the network's bid to be carried on basic cable, casting fresh doubts on the future of the controversial upstart broadcaster.

But the CRTC also says it will review the regulations for news channels in Canada.

"The diversity of voices is an essential component of our society, particularly as they relate to news and information in the Canadian broadcasting system," CRTC chairman Jean-Pierre Blais said in a statement.

"Television news channels provide an important public service by ensuring that Canadians are exposed to different opinions and perspectives on matters that concern all citizens. We are concerned that, under the existing rules, Canadian news services are not being given a pride of place in our broadcasting system."

AND IN OTHER SHARK NEWS...

1 When the dealin's done. Amazon founder Jeff Bezos bought the Washington Post from the Grahams to whom it belonged for 80 years. The sale came as a surprise to many, so when Post Co. CEO Donald E. Graham was asked why he would sell his family business so suddenly, he said, "Look, I'm old. It's a newspaper, and the guy had $250 million." Touché, Donny.

2 Global warming. A new study revealed worrisome statistics from 2012. Rising sea levels and melting ice reached alarming levels. Temperatures were only slightly affected but have been increasing at a rate of about 1.5 C per decade over the last 50 years. In short, I may not have to worry in my lifetime, but we should all probably stop having kids.

3 Shark week. Headlines read "Dead shark found on NYC subway." Firstly, do we need the word 'dead' here? Or is it not enough that in a densely populated city, someone could enter a station with a three-foot-long stinking sea creature, wait for the train, drag it in before the doors close, and place it under a row of seats without anyone noticing?

4 'Spelling' be. Twelve-year-old Thomas Hurley III misspelled the final Jeopardy! answer 'Emancipation Proclamation,' which judges deemed unacceptable. The commotion caused by this completely overshadowed the fact that the real winner not only had the answer spelled correctly, but that his record-breaking score of $66,000 meant that Thomas had zero chance of winning anyway. But maybe I'm just 'nuptick-ing.'

5 Grand slam. It was a big week for 38-year-old Alex Rodriguez who returned to baseball this week after his second hip surgery in four years. A-Rod also received a suspension for drug use, which he is appealing on the basis that, at his age and stage of his career, pretty much anything would qualify as "performance-enhancing."

6 Birthday suit. When asked if she was uncomfortable with the nudity and risqué sexuality in playing the role of Linda Lovelace, Amanda Seyfried shrugged and said, "It's a costume really.

Just a naked body. We all look the same." Umm, no, but that's why I love Amanda Seyfried.

7 The Bachelorette. If I understand this correctly, Desiree told the final bachelor, "I publicly declared my love for another contestant who told me he didn't feel the same (just last week), and it made me realize I was in love with you all along." Ah, the romantic story we all long to tell our kids, and it's all on video. Cheers!

8 This week in music. In 1975 The Bee Gees hit No. 1 in America with 'Jive Talkin'', which was the group's second U.S. chart-topper on the road to many more. They were also the first known white people to ever use that phrase.

9 Piano in the dark. The Canadian music community suffered a loss this week when James Gray died of a sudden heart attack. James was just 52, and played keyboards for the Rheostatics, Vital Sines, and Blue Rodeo. Among the countless artists who had the pleasure to work with Gray, he will be fondly remembered. His death leaves a gaping hole in the music community. As for me, I thank him for the songs he leaves behind.

Brompton Road station is being sold by the Ministry of Defence, which bought the building in the 1936, when it became an army anti-aircraft headquarters, protecting London from German bombers during the Blitz.

The ministry, which is selling several properties and laying off thousands of soldiers in a cost-cutting drive, says the building has been declared

"surplus to requirements" and will be put up for sale next month. The site includes a station building covered in the distinctive oxblood-coloured tiles of London Underground's Piccadilly Line. The ministry said the interior includes "a drill hall, garages, offices and mess," as well as elevator shafts and underground passages — though not the subway tunnels, which remain in use and belong to London's transit operator.

While it's not for the faint of heart, disaster tourism is booming. But for those whose wallet, anxiety levels, or phobias prevent them from diving into danger, the curious-but-not-that-curious can now easily partake in some arm-chair disaster tourism.

Fukushima

Years after the small Japanese town of Namie was evacuated in the wake of the Fukushima tsunami and nuclear disaster, Google brought their street view team and cameras to show the world what remains.

@Canucklehead_ca: Clearly a batcave. If anyone says anything different they've simply neglected to think of a batcave. (BATCAVE!)

@cliffboldt: I would make it into a museum dedicated to the effects fo the free market economy on the United Kingdom.

@TransitQ: A Batcave sound nice, yes BUT let's ramp it up with a Super Heroes Command Centre...Tick? Carpet Man?

@Kris_Maki: emergency crash pad for when you just can't make it home and need to be in a bed NOW.

Synopsis

Set in 2154, humanity has split into two sections, the one per cent, who live on an Eden called Elysium that hovers high above Earth, and the 99 per cent who toil on what's left of our planet. The one per cent have it all plus medical care that can cure any ailment. On earth Max (Matt Damon) is an ex-thief who has always dreamed of living in Elysium and is now working a straight job to save enough to buy a ticket. When he's exposed to a lethal dose of radiation he makes a deal with a crime boss (Wagner Moura) who hires him to do a job for a one-way ticket to Elysium. Metro's Liz Brown sits in for Mark Breslin.

Reel Guys

CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

Matt Damon is convincing as a downtrodden guy with a dream in Elysium. CONTRIBUTED

Back to the future?

Elysium. District 9 director's return to the big screen isn't as sci-fi fresh as his debut

Richard: Liz, director Neill Blomkamp's big screen debut, District 9, was a fresh slice of sci-fi with a real beating heart. He brings that same kind of humanity to Elysium, but it doesn't feel quite as fresh this time around. It's exciting, has some great action and ideas and everybody's boyfriend Matt Damon, but for all that, it feels much more standard than I hoped it would be. What did you think?

Liz: Richard, Elysium isn't as fresh because it's District 9 with prettier faces. There's an unfair class system, a guy who undergoes a grotesque transformation and the same dusty shanty towns. I even thought Blomkamp recycled footage from District 9 — the Los Angeles of 2154 looks oddly like the Prawn camp outside Johannesburg. But a shredded Matt Damon is a nice addition to the somewhat tired story.

RC: I should make it clear that I liked most of this movie. I think the setup is interesting, even if it is reminiscent of everything from Oblivion and even WALL-E, and for the first hour it does what great sci-fi should do, comment on the human condition. But then it becomes an ordinary bash-'em and beat-'em action movie with sentimental and mawkish overtones. It's not bad, and, in fact, at times is pretty great, just not as great as I expected.

LB: While the story was meh, for me, the bash-'em-up scenes were great. Watching Matt Damon and a deranged Sharlto Copley tangle in some mortal combat was a lot of fun. I thought Copley — who was the wimpy Wikus in District 9 — really stole the show in his role as a rogue secret service agent.

RC: Copley is entertaining, chewing through the scenery like he hasn't eaten in a week. Damon also impresses. He's believable as both the sensitive guy with a dream and the lethal, half-cyborg warrior capable of opening a can of futuristic whoop ass on everyone in his way. Jodie Foster is nice cast as the ice cold Donald Rumsfeld-style villain, but I found her perfect diction really distracting. Every word she says seemed to have its own finely honed shape to the point where I almost had a hard time understanding what she was saying.

LB: Foster wasn't the only one with distracting diction. I found the fast-talk in this film impossible to understand. I'm still not sure of the finer points of the Earthling plan to invade Elysium and maybe Matt Damon missed them too, judging from the way things go terribly wrong. He really got a raw deal didn't he? Only Damon could take on a lethal radiation dose, sketchy Tijuana-style surgery and a few beatings and still save the day.

Objection! My destiny is to act — preferably with Matt Damon

KATE WEBB
Metro in Vancouver

It took Josh Blacker a few years of working as a litigator to realize that law was not nearly as dramatic a career path as he had hoped it would be.

The Vancouver actor, now 40, had pictured himself making passionate, nuanced arguments in front of a judge, but in practise his days in court were rare, and when he did go he found the script he had to follow was boring.

"I think what happened was I watched an episode of L.A. law, and thought, 'That would be fun,' and then realized later on that, in fact, I didn't want to be a lawyer," he told Metro in a recent phone interview from L.A.

"I wanted to be a person pretending to be a lawyer."

In 2004 he packed up and moved from Calgary to Vancouver to pursue his other lifelong dream, acting, which paid off big time when he was cast in Elysium: Oscar-nominated writer/director Neill Blomkamp's blockbuster sci-fi followup to District 9.

Set in the year 2154, two classes of people exist: the very wealthy who live on a pristine man-made space station called Elysium, and the rest, who live on an overpopulated, ruined Earth.

Starring opposite Jodie

Foster, Matt Damon, Sharlto Copley, Diego Luna, Brandon Auer, and Alice Braga, Blacker plays Crowe, a South African mercenary sent to protect Elysium.

Blacker happens to have been born and raised in South Africa, so when he found out Blomkamp was casting a South African for the film, he says he felt he was destined to play the part. It is also the type of role in which he was comfortable and experienced, having appeared on a number of Vancouver-shot sci-fi TV shows such as Supernatural and Stargate: Atlantis.

"Most of the time I play some pretty bad dudes," he said. "I've played marines and convicts and mercenaries and occasionally some guy that maybe you're not sure about that lives next door."

Blacker said working with Damon and Foster was a "dream come true" and called his feature film debut the most amazing experience of his career to date.

"He's exactly as you would expect him to be," he said of Damon. "He's grounded and warm as you would expect him to be, and he has a really great sense of humour. He's just a terrific guy and you can understand why he's one of the most bankable stars out there."

Elysium opens in IMAX and theatres nationwide on Aug. 9.

Comedy

Planes

Director. Clay Hall

Stars. Dane Cook, Stacy Keach, Brad Garrett

After narrowly qualifying for the Wings Around the World Rally, Dusty (voice of Dane Cook), a single-propeller crop duster with a fear of heights, recruits the help of retired Navy Corsair Skipper (voice of Stacy Keach) to teach him how to win. Unfortunately the race's reigning champ Ripslinger (Roger Craig Smith) feels threatened by Dusty and conspires to dash his high hopes. Planes plays like an airborne Cars, but has a definite direct-to-DVD feel about it. There are good messages about the benefits of honesty and hard work, but the dull story never takes flight.

Only God Forgives

Director. Nicolas Winding Refn

Stars. Ryan Gosling, Kristin Scott Thomas

Danish director Nicolas Winding Refn's followup to his sleek neo-noir breakthrough Drive doubles down on the idea of Ryan Gosling as a strong, silent antihero: this time out, he's the heir to an American drug-running empire, stranded in Bangkok and feuding with a retired police captain who conducts interrogations with a machete. The slow pace, and pulsing synth score suggest that Refn is going for a mesmerizing atmosphere, but the overall effect is simply numbing. ADAM NAYMAN

It's her wedding and she'll have it when she wants to Jennifer Aniston is fed up with the tabloids reporting that she and fiancé Justin Theroux have called off their wedding.

"Well, there was no wedding planned," an exasperated Aniston says while visiting The Talk, a daytime chat show.

"Do you realize that the majority of all of those tag rags are loaded with absolute false information? They like to create the stories because it's not interesting, the story of, 'we're really happy and in love and feel like we're married and eventually we're going to get married when we find the time.' I don't think there's a rush."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Beyoncé, and more celebs who chopped their hair off

The unthinkable has happened. Beyoncé, who pretty much runs the world right now, with her inexplicably voluminous waves flowing in her hip-shaking wake, has gone for the chop. She posted photos to her

Instagram today of the bleached-blond do, immediately dividing her five million plus followers. In recognition of this monumental moment, we reflect on a couple celebrities who have divided the world with their haircut.

Anne Hathaway

The Les Mis star has never had the best luck with public opinion in the first place, but when she cut off her hair for the role of Fantine, things got messy.

Rihanna

When Rihanna first went for the crop it signalled the end of the Pon de Replay era and the beginning of the provocative singer as we now know her.

Miley Cyrus

What better way to wave her Disney days goodbye than with a bleached pixie cut? The new, punked-up Miley was probably a bit of a surprise to her pre-teen fan base. She's still working on making her image click.

METRO

Hayek's daughter getting red carpet treatment already

Looks like Salma Hayek has a little diva on her hands. The actress says that five-year-old daughter Valentina is a sucker for the spotlight already.

"She loves coming on the red carpet with me and she loves standing having her picture taken," Hayek tells Express.

"She loves to have her red carpet moment. (She's) already a very talented actor."

With craft beer hotter than you know where, larger producers are caught in a bit of a conundrum. How, after decades of massaging the taste profile of their brands so they appeal to the masses, do they compete with up-starts that are all about in-your-face flavours?

Many have returned to their kettles to take advantage of beer's primary flavouring agent — the often unheralded hop.

Hops are the lady part of the humulus lupulus plant. And while the water or grain source of your fave brew influences its personality, individual hop strains provide the bitter goodness and expressive character.

Alexander Keith's, the one-time Nova Scotia exclusive that's now carried across the country, is proving my point by creating a unique series of ales named for the specific hop used.

Its Cascade Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is a mellow session beer with citrusy overtones and a nice, bitter bite. The Hallertauer Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is lighter with more of a backseat bitterness that lets the malt shine through.

Try both with classic barbecue fare or spicy, hard to match dishes like Indian curries. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Get creative and cool down by making your own flurry combinations at home. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A flurry of sweet treats

Ice cream. Need a fresh way to chill out this summer? How about DIY flurries?

A flurry is simple — and it isn't something you can only get at the ice cream shop. You start off with ice cream, usually a basic flavour, then you stir or mix or blend all kinds of things into it. It's not a float; no liquid is added. It's like an ice cream sundae, but with the toppings blended instead of piled on top.

Start with a pint of ice cream. Remove the lid and microwave it for about 10 seconds. Test it with a spoon. The ice cream should still be frozen, but should give when pressed with the back of the spoon. If it's not ready, continue microwaving in 5-second bursts, testing in between.

Now you're ready to mix. You can keep it simple and just use a spoon to mix the ice cream and toppings in a bowl, but where's the fun in that? Ice cream shops often use a stick blender, an item you may not have. So instead, toss everything into the food processor and pulse a few times.

As for what to use to flavour your flurries? Anything goes.

Roughriders quarterback Darian Durant hands the ball off to running back Kory Sheets in pre-season action against the Calgary Stampede in Regina on June 20. The Roughriders face the 4-1 Stampede on Friday. LIAM RICHARDS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

League's top two teams square off

Perfect record.

Roughriders look to continue their streak of wins against the Stampede

If he wasn't playing in the game, quarterback Kevin Glenn says he would definitely watch it. If he wasn't coaching in it, so would Corey Chamblin.

Friday's CFL game at McMahon Stadium between the Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampede may be just another regular-season game with two-thirds of the season still to be played.

But this game has more than enough back story to hook the interest of CFL fans.

"This is a game that I wish I could play in," Saskatchewan head coach Chamblin said.

Added Calgary's Glenn: "If I was on another team and this game was coming on, I would be tuned into watching this game. I'd tell my wife and kids

Kevin Glenn, Calgary Stampede quarterback on the highly-anticipated game between the league's two best teams on Friday

'daddy's watching football tonight because the Riders and Stampede are playing."

The Roughriders are the only undefeated team in the CFL this season at 5-0. The only loss so far for the 4-1 Stampede was to Saskatchewan on July 5.

Saskatchewan can go 6-0 to start the season for just the second time in franchise history, or the Stampede can pull even with the Roughriders atop the CFL standings.

The Roughriders can also win the season series by taking the second of their three meetings, which means Saskatchewan would finish ahead of Calgary if the two clubs were tied in the West Division standings at season's end.

The Roughriders and Stampede rank first and second respectively in the league in offence. Roughriders running back Kory Sheets is the CFL's leading rusher ahead of No. 2 Jon Cornish of the Stampede.

In addition to having a premiere running back, both sides have multiple threats at receiver.

Neither team has missed a field goal this season, and they're tied for the average starting point in drives (39-yard line).

Both football clubs are coming off their bye weeks with questions at quarterback. Darian Durant is back after sitting out Saskatchewan's last game with an ankle injury.

Calgary backup Glenn will get the start Friday with Bo Levi

Banged up

Both teams go into Friday's game with questions on the health of their quarterbacks.

- Roughriders' quarterback Darian Durant is back in action following an ankle injury.
- Stampede's quarterback Drew Tate will be out with an arm injury.

Mitchell dressing as the No. 2. Mitchell went the distance in a win over Winnipeg in Calgary's last game, which Glenn sat out with an elbow injury.

Drew Tate was announced as Calgary's starter earlier this week, but had a setback with the throwing-arm injury he suffered late in that game in Regina in Week 2. Head coach John Hufnagel said Thursday that Tate will be sidelined at least another two to three weeks.

Rogers Cup Men

Pospisil and Raonic advance to quarter-finals

Vasek Pospisil and Milos Raonic will play in the quarter-finals of the men's Rogers Cup.

Pospisil, of Vernon, B.C., came out on top of a tight match with fifth-seeded Tomas Berdych to win 7-5, 2-6, 7-6 (5) before a roaring crowd of supporters on Thursday.

Raonic, meanwhile, didn't even break a smile after a 7-5, 6-4 win over sixth-seeded Juan Martin Del Potro, the Argentine veteran who was coming off a victory last week in Washington.

Women's Rogers Cup

Williams crushes Flipkens, advances to quarter-finals

Top-seeded Serena Williams advanced to the Rogers Cup quarter-finals Thursday, beating 13th-seeded Kirsten Flipkens of Belgium 6-0, 6-3.

Williams, coming off a tournament victory 2 1/2 weeks ago in the Swedish Open, set up a match Friday against Slovakia's Magdalena Rybarikova.

Wimbledon champion Marion Bartoli retired because of an abdominal injury. THE CANADIAN PRESS

PGA Championship

Scott joins Furyk for the lead at Oak Hill

With every major, Adam Scott is making a convincing case that he isn't satisfied with just a green jacket.

Scott ran off five straight birdies early in his round at soft and vulnerable Oak Hill, and finished with a 15-foot par for a 5-under 65 that gave him a share of the lead Thursday with Jim Furyk in the PGA Championship.

David Hearn of Brantford, Ont., an alternate until a week ago, had a 66 in the morning. Also at 66 was Lee Westwood, who had his best score ever in the PGA and offered evidence that there was no hangover from losing a 54-hole lead in the British Open last month.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

There may be a 90 per cent chance that what you are about to embark on will end in failure, but don't let that stop you. Maybe the percentages are wrong. Maybe you can will yourself to success.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Do something that upsets those who don't like it when changes have to be made. Just because others have settled into a safe rhythm does not mean you have to as well.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

If there is something you want, just take it. Be aware, however, that when you take from others it gives them the right to take from you in return.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You may be desperate to change your life for the better but it won't happen overnight. Anything that is worth having is worth working for, so roll up your sleeves and get in there.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Self-doubt may be alien to you but there will be times over the next couple of days when you begin to wonder if you are doing something the wrong way. Maybe you are. Even a Leo gets it wrong sometimes.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Do something today that reminds those around you how dangerous it can be to take you for granted. You don't have to make it shocking or outrageous but, on the other hand, there's no reason why you should not!

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Pick a side and join in some kind of battle today. Does that thought fill you with fear? It shouldn't. The only people who have cause to be alarmed are those who find themselves on the opposite side to you.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Saturn in your sign is pushing you to your limits but that's OK because you enjoy being tested. Decide on a course of action over the next 24 hours and stick to it.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

The best way to deal with criticism is to ignore it. Someone will say something today that is neither true nor fair but so what? Your ego is tough enough to take it.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You will be faced with a situation that makes you angry today but don't let it get out of hand. Before you lose your temper try asking yourself who is most likely to get hurt by it: your rival or you?

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

There are times when it's OK to be selfish and this is one of them. The more other people try to move you in a certain direction, the more you must insist on going some other way, just to annoy them.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

You are under divine protection and don't need to worry about the day's events or what the future may bring. Do what feels right. One way or another it will work out. SALLY BROMPTON
